

Phenology Friday-May 15, 2020

One tell tale sign of spring is when a bright yellow flower pops up all around.

Have you seen dandelions outside yet?

What have you heard or learned about the dandelion?

Did you know all parts of the plant are edible, from root to flower?

Learn more about all of the uses of wañčá zí (Lakota for dandelion) from UTTC's ethnobotanist, Linda Black Elk.

<https://lrinspire.com/2018/02/28/wild-edibles-traditional-medicine-by-linda-black-elk/>

UNITED TRIBES
TECHNICAL COLLEGE

Phenology Friday: Connect with us!

Head out on a wondering walk in search of this often underestimated plant.

During this time of social distancing we want to stay connected as a community.

Let's create a hashtag to share pictures of what we find outside.

Example: #phenologyfriday

Drop your ideas in the comments and we will make a poll to vote on the best hashtag! Let's see your creativity!